Earth Day Reef Clean-Up on Sunday, April 23, with Trilogy Excursions—VOLUNTEERS SAIL FOR FREE!

This Year's Destination is Hulopo'e Beach Park on the Island of Lanai with Trip from 9am to 3pm, Lahaina Harbor

Lahaina, Maui, Hawaii (April 12, 2006)—In honor of Earth Day, Trilogy Excursions—a Maui-based family owned and operated company—will be conducting a reef clean up of Hulopo'e Beach Park on the Island of Lanai on Sunday, April 23. This mission will be completely volunteer-driven and is open to the public FREE OF CHARGE, as long as those who sign-up are willing to help work in cleaning up the reef. Trip details:

Sunday, April 23—trip will run from 9am to 3pm

9am check-in at Lahaina Harbor

Sailing to the Island of Lanai on Trilogy VI

Volunteer mission is to clean-up Hulopo'e Beach Park

Trilogy Excursions will provide snorkeling equipment and trash bags for participants

Trilogy Excursions will also provide tanks for certified divers but no scuba gear

All certified divers must present proof of scuba certification to be able to use a tank

Volunteers are urged to pack a picnic lunch since there are no food services besides the Manele Bay Hotel

“Like most ocean recreation companies here in Hawaii, Trilogy and its crew do what they can year-round to keep our reefs clean,” shares Captain R.S. Coon, president. “However, there are some areas and some challenges that need a more serious effort than what is possible during the course of recreational snorkeling and diving.”

He continues, “The annual Earth Day Reef Clean-Up is a great opportunity for anyone in the community to join an industry partner one day a year in a fun and worthwhile cause. Every year that we do this, folks from the local community say something like ‘we wish we could do this every weekend!’”
